“Lone Wolf” Officer Survival Course

30 HR “Lone Wolf” Officer Survival Course

This Advanced Officer Survival Course is an aggressive training course designed to prepare Deputies, Officers, Game and Fish, State Police, Narcotics Officers and other law enforcement individuals, who find themselves encountering hostile subjects / suspects alone during high stress and routine daily operations.

This course focuses on techniques and tactics designed to increase officer safety while handling hostile and multiple suspect contacts. Attendees will be challenged mentally, physically and professionally while handling high risk/high stress situations that a lone officer may face in the performance of his/her duties.

During the Officer Down / Mass Casualty Triage block of instruction, individuals will learn tactics and medical care techniques used to control major arterial bleeding, treating for shock, proper application of a tourniquet and many other skills needed to make a difference in life or death situations. This concept has proven its worth in the recent years as officer’s lives have been saved by educating LEO’s about tactical trauma care. Also covered is the vital triaging process for LE, which is designed to bridge the gap between LE and EMS. Attendees will learn the skills necessary to start the triage process prior to the arrival of EMS.

This course is “reality based” with the incorporation of Simunition® scenario’s throughout.

“Lone Wolf” Officer Survival Course

Live fire, Simunitions® and Combatives will be incorporated throughout this fast-paced, realistic course designed to hone the skills needed to control violent encounters, survive and save lives when failure is not an option.

Major areas of emphasis:

- Use of Force & Case Law Review
- Current Climate of LE
- Anti Ambush Tactics
- CQ Pistol
- CQ Combatives
- Officer Down Trauma Care

This class is being hosted by the Filer Police Department on October 21st-23rd, 2015. This class will be held in Filer, ID. Cost: $475.00 per student.
